READ THE TEXT BELOW AND ANSWER THE QUESTIONS 1-4. CHOOSE A, B OR C.

Out of School?

Home schooling may be every child's dream, but it's already true for 150,000 children in the U.K. There are various reasons why children leave school and study at home. For example, some children feel they can't stand their classmates' violent behavior. For others, going to school is not practical because they come from families who move around a lot. Whatever the reason may be, the law allows parents to take their children out of school and educate them at home.

Learning at home has its advantages. For example, children don't have a strict schedule and they can spend more time doing subjects they really like. Many kids also feel that they have more free time to learn one more foreign language or have music lessons more often than they would if they attended school.

However, learning at home is not always as easy as you might think. Children find it difficult to concentrate at home as there are so many other things going on there. They miss talking and playing with their friends. Their parents are also around all the time complaining that they don't study enough.

In fact, as most home-schooled children admit, school is the best place to meet people and make friends. School plays an important role in a child's development, that's why it still remains the most popular choice for children and parents.

1. Why do some children leave school to be home schooled?
 - a. Because their parents can educate them better.
 - b. Because their families travel a lot.
 - c. Because they live too far away from school.
2. Why is home schooling good for children?
 - a. It gives them lots of free time for their hobbies.
 - b. They can do subjects which aren't taught at school.
 - c. They can choose when and how much they study.

3. What problem do home-schooled children have?
- a. They never have enough time to study.
 - b. They don't like the way their parents teach them.
 - c. They can't get away from their parents' attention.

4. Why was this text written?
- a. To give information about home schooling.
 - b. To show the advantages of home schooling.
 - c. To discuss problems that kids have at school.
